

Vision statement:

The Anne Clémande Julien Foundation Haiti School and orphanage is a 501C organization dedicated toward providing an education to impoverished Haitian children living in Chambellan, Haiti. The foundation's sponsors children who have been abandoned or who have deceased parents, nurturing them in their religious, social and academic development by providing to them and the young adults with high quality instruction supporting by the local community. In essence, the Anne Clémande Julien Foundation aims to give children and young adults their basic need for an education, while also supporting and providing for their basic needs for food, shelter and love. We motivate and encourage them to become confident, self sufficient and respectful citizens. The foundation works with the community at large in several areas to improve and change the lives of the poor people leaving in the countryside of Haiti. For several years the foundation gives a monthly monetary donation to more than ten elderly and senior citizens to buy their basic need for food and medication. Every year as well, we pay tuitions for several young people to learn a profession or to study at the university according to our possibilities.

Mission statement: we stand to provide a safe, inviting, involving, innovating supportive environment in building relationship on a community and shared responsibility for continue community development and accomplishment.

Our motto:

The Anne Clémande Julien Haiti School and orphanage is a Symbol of hope for our children, young adults, people of our locality and the center of the community.

We Work with the local associations and organizations to empower themselves with tools and knowledge to built together the community.
